SAT Subject Tests™ are assessments for 10th, 11th, and 12th graders (and 9th graders taking the corresponding courses) that assess 20 subject areas that fall under English, History, Science, Mathematics, and Foreign Languages. The College Board is a not-for-profit membership organization whose mission is to connect students to college success and opportunity. The College Board works with over 5,700 schools, colleges, universities, and other educational organizations, serves more than seven million students and parents and 3,800 colleges and universities in over 180 countries and territories, as well as policymakers on the national and state levels. The College Board also maintains relationships with more than 900 key school districts across the country. College Board services pertinent to this RFQ include assessments such as AP®, ReadiStep®, PSAT/NMSQT®, ACCUPLACER®, SAT®, and SAT Subject tests. In addition to its main offices, the College Board maintains six regional offices to better serve schools and districts nationwide. The Middle Sates Regional Office serves the state of New York. Staff at the national and regional levels will provide the services necessary to provide SAT Subject Tests™ to districts state wide. Possibly no other organization in the world has more experience and a longer history of producing large scale assessments as the College Board. Since 1901, the Board has tested high school students moving on to college with both open-ended and (especially) multiple choice tests. The Subject Tests, originally called Achievement Tests, have been administered globally since 1937. The tests are offered six times each year, in 6,000 test centers world-wide. Students can access their scores, online, just three weeks after the test is given. High volume test administration, scoring and reporting are hall marks of the College Board, with millions of tests given each year. In the high school graduating class of 2010, just under 300,000 students were given just under 800,000 Subject Tests. And the College Board definitely has the capacity to increase these numbers, since the SAT, which is administered, scored and reported at the same time as Subject Tests, routinely has volumes in excess of half-a-million students on a single test day. So the Board is well prepared to Provide Subject Tests to all 10th, 11th and 12th graders in New York State.

Estimated Service Provider Costs (non-binding)
Fixed costs over a given academic year.	Per student per test costs are as follows: 2011-12 = $33, 2012-13 = $35, 2013-14 = $37, 2014-15 = $39, 2015-16 = $41. If a student takes multiple tests in the same sitting (up to 3), costs decrease significantly. See sealed Cost Estimate for details.

Per-student costs over a given academic year that are above the estimated fixed costs.	There are no costs above the estimated fixed costs. Purchase of tests includes test booklets, answer sheets, manuals, data and reports, and online training for administrators.
Time-and-materials costs that are limited to special services that are NOT required for standard administration during a given year (e.g., special professional development services at the start of a contract, standard setting if required, test augmentation if required, language translation fees for tests and supporting materials) and that are delineated on either a time-and-materials or a cost-per-service basis for each special service).	The College Board is open to discussing additional optional professional development or other district needs at a cost to be negotiated with the individual district. The aforementioned prices for College Board tests, services and deliverables are based on the proposed prices for the 2011-2012 school year. Any references to prices for subsequent years are solely for projection purposes and may be subject to change based on the College Board's then-current costs, policies and procedures.
